What is the fund's objective?

What does the fund invest in?

The ETF seeks to track the performance of the S&P 500 Capped 35/20 Information Technology Index (Index) by holding the equity securities, which make up the Index, in similar proportions to it.

The Index measures the performance of stocks from the S&P 500 Index which are within the Global Industry Classification Standard (GICS) information technology sector and uses capping to ensure diversification among companies within the index. The Index is rebalanced quarterly.

What possible risks are associated with this fund?

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Commentary

Fund review

The fund provides diversified exposure to S&P500 information technology sector companies. The top five equity holdings are Microsoft Corp (24%), Apple Inc (19%), NVIDIA Corp (17%), Broadcom Inc (4%) and Advanced Micro Devices Inc (2%) out of 65 holdings as at end of Q1 2024. The fund's weighted average dollar dividend yield is 0.69% as at end of Q1 2024.

Market overview

In the first quarter of 2024, global markets were quite resilient despite the unchanged interest rates in major economies. The US labour market remained strong over the first quarter but poses challenges from a monetary policy perspective. Major central banks globally have not yet cut interest rates, which might be due to the delay by the US Federal Reserve (Fed). Over the first quarter of 2024, MSCI EM increased by 2.2% and MSCI World by 3.0% both outperforming MSCI EMEA which had a fall of 0.6%. Global equity performed well, driven by technology and communication services.

In South Africa, there remains persistent challenges within the macroeconomic environment hindering economic growth, mainly due to continuous electricity outages and supply side challenges related to the failing railway and ports infrastructure, which provided little relief to the SA inflation rate remaining towards the upper end of the 3% to 6% target range. At the last MPC meeting, the Governor emphasised anchoring inflation to 4.5% and was aligned to market expectations of keeping interest rates unchanged. Local equities were up over the first quarter with the FTSE/JSE Top 40 up 3.85% and the FTSE/JSE Capped SWIX up 2.9%. The ALBI declined by 1.9% whilst the rand strengthened to 18.80 against the USD over the quarter.

Looking ahead

The current resilient nature of the US labour market and high wage rate growth do not present a conducive backdrop for an interest rate-cutting environment. This does not imply that interest rates will not be cut but supports the possibility of the Fed decreasing the number of interest rate cuts this year. The ECB meeting held in March flagged the optimistic stance of policymakers in cutting interest rates but will be reliant on economic data in the second quarter of the year. In the East, China's PMI is expected to be resilient, provided there is ongoing growth in production and strong export numbers. The property market crisis in China continues to negatively impact investor confidence. Further unfolding geopolitical tensions, and their impact on risk assets and inflation, will remain a key focus for the remainder of the year.

The rise in SA's inflation rate during the end of the first quarter limits the possibility of interest rates being cut early this year. It is expected that the inflation rate will only reach 4.5% at the end of 2025. Interest rate expectations will remain at their peak in the second quarter of this year and are expected to decrease in the third quarter. On the political front, SA national elections are to be held in May. Despite the possibility of coalitions, it is anticipated that the likely outcome of the elections is not expected to have any impact on the economic reforms in the country.
