3rd Quarter 2024

Market performance

The S&P 500 closed at record highs after the first cut in the current cycle by the Federal Reserve. The Fed cut interest rates by 0.5% and updated its economic projections to reflect increased confidence for lower inflation while raising risks around the labour market. Despite the cooling labour market, the consumer sector appears robust. Household wealth has significantly increased on the back of rising values in both housing and financial markets, and household balance sheets are in good shape, having undergone a prolonged period of deleveraging. With reduced debt levels and increased net worth, the debt service ratio is at manageable levels, consumers are less under pressure to save for debt repayment and credit is expanding alongside bank loan growth. The Atlanta Fed's GDPNow model projects a healthy annualised gross domestic product (GDP) growth rate of 2.9% for the third quarter, suggesting a robust US economy.

Looking beyond the first US rate cut, the question becomes whether this is an opportune time to invest in small-cap stocks and real estate. Over half of the bottom 1 000 companies in the Russell 3000 are unprofitable, a stark contrast to the 10% of 1996. The economic landscape is complicated by the fact that interest rates are unlikely to return to the near-zero levels of the Covid-19 pandemic. This persistent higher-rate environment could inhibit recovery for many small-cap firms, particularly those that survived in the era of low rates but that may not be fundamentally sound enough to thrive now. While a decrease in interest rates could provide some relief for the property sector given its high levels of leverage, the ongoing structural challenges posed by remote work and the rise of online shopping continue to disrupt the demand-supply balance in real estate. These factors suggest that even with rate cuts, fundamental issues within the sector may persist, making recovery uncertain.

China's central bank unveiled a huge stimulus package to boost its economy, sending commodities and emerging market stocks higher. Key interest rates were cut and plans were announced to reduce the bank's required reserve ratio to its lowest level since 2018. Mortgage rates were lowered and rules for second home purchases will be eased. 100% of loans for local governments buying unsold homes will be covered, up from 60%. A stock stabilisation fund of 500 billion yuan was also announced, with measures to encourage mergers and acquisitions to be announced soon. This is a step in the right direction but is unlikely to sufficiently improve domestic consumer confidence, and China faces a significant deflationary spiral. Weak demand conditions are further reflected in stagnating imports, and the housing sector is still struggling with excess supply, showing a sharp decline in both housing starts and sales. China is also experiencing a large trade surplus as it attempts to export its excess production.

The core issue is not that the Chinese government has excessive debt – this debt can be financed domestically – but that the ageing population and property market crunch have diminished consumer confidence and spending. The government needs to step in with supportive fiscal spend, i.e. take on more debt.

South African assets and the rand rallied on the back of the Fed cuts, which weakened the dollar and lowered global interest rates, and further on the Chinese stimulus, which drove up commodity prices and resources. The South African Reserve Bank cut interest rates by 0.25% – less than the Fed despite SA inflation being closer to target. The new two-pot retirement system went online in September; outflows so far seem lower than expected, which may mean less of a once-off boost to GDP. We remain neutral on SA assets.

The S&P Global flash purchasing managers (PMIs) indexes show that the contraction in manufacturing activity in developed markets has accelerated. The weakness in Europe is likely driven by China moving up the value chain and by ongoing high energy prices, while the weakness in the US is a result of the ongoing normalisation of Covid goods spend. Services PMIs continue to expand in most regions. We remain overweight US, where the US consumer accounts for 69% of GDP. The US is a consumption-based economy and is often seen as the global consumer of last resort; while headwinds are rising, the US consumer remains robust. Eurasia and emerging markets (EMs) are largely production-based economies heavily linked into the global manufacturing supply chain. As the world is currently in a manufacturing recession, the producing economies led by China's slowdown are struggling. This suggests that the dollar will not fall as much as interest rate differentials might suggest after the Fed's rate cut, as the US economy remains relatively strong. Thus, while commodity prices, EMs and Eurasia may rally in the short term on the back of rate cuts and the Chinese stimulus, longer-term commodity prices will continue to struggle and EMs and Eurasia will continue to underperform.

Based on the nine easing cycles that have occurred since 1974, performance after the initial rate cut is heavily dependent on the state of the economy. No recession occurred in the subsequent 12 months of four of the nine rate-cut cycles. Equities posted positive returns in all four of these instances, delivering an impressive median gain of 18% – against a fall of 10% when recessions did occur. We do not believe the US is heading for a recession within the next 12 months, and we remain overweight equities.

As always, however, risks remain. Global shipping costs remain elevated and geopolitical risks continue to rise, with Israel escalating its campaign against the Iran-backed Hezbollah militant group through a massive bombardment of Lebanon.

What is the Total Expense Ratio (TER) and Transaction Costs (TC)?

The total expense ratio (TER) is the annualised percentage of the fund's average assets under management that has been used to pay the fund's actual expenses over the past three years. Transaction costs are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impact fund returns. They should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time, including market returns, the type of financial product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. Since fund returns are quoted after the deduction of these expenses, the TER and Transaction Costs should not be deducted again from the published returns. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return.

Cumulative Investment Performance

Cumulative investment performance is for illustrative purposes only. The investment performance is calculated by taking all ongoing fees into account for the amount shown, with income reinvested on the reinvestment date.

How are NAV prices calculated?

Net Asset Value (NAV) prices are calculated on a net asset value basis, which is the total market value of all assets in the portfolio including any income accruals and less any permissible deductions from the portfolio divided by the number of units in issue. The price at which ETFs trade on an Exchange may differ from the NAV price published at the close of the trading day, because of intraday price movements in the value of the constituent basket of securities.
